"Teens to Teens" Outreach

A Performing Arts Organization to Creatively Impact Our Communities

"All Dress Up -- No Place to Go" is about two teenage couples who take different paths in their dating relationships.

Recognizing that more and more teens are sexually active, the play explores concepts of teen sexuality and presents a strong message of abstinence, self-worth, and respect for each other by conveying the message that it is never too late to make wise choices for personal safety and health.

The audience is challenged to have dating relationships based on trust, mutual respect and abstinence, and to stand up to peer pressure. As well as avoid the risk of pregnancy, sexually transmitted diseases or AIDS!

Homeward Bound Theatre Company's "Teens to Teens" Outreach, is a non-profit, 501-C3, professional performing arts organization, committed to providing teens with choices that will help them improve their self-confidence and self-esteem. With this strong self concept, they can make better choices for themselves and resist the negative pressures they face each day of their lives.

"Teens to Teens" Outreach program is a group of young people sharing drama productions and sketches about various issues facing today's teenagers; such as premarital sex, teen pregnancy, teen violence, drugs & alcohol, peer pressure, family life, and other contemporary issues. Members have been professionally trained as actors, peer facilitators, and public speakers on current topics that are negatively affecting our country's youth.

An interactive discussion following each performance, provides time during which teens can relate to teens about their issues, questions, feelings, and concerns, as well as helping them in dealing with the pressures and challenges of today's world.
